3M™ DI-NOOC™ Architectural Finishes

Case Study 2021

Ned Ludd Public House, United Kingdom

A 'WOW factor' result without breaking the bank

Adam and Amanda inherited a run-down pub and wanted to revive it with their own style of industrial chic, however they had been at a loss as to how to address the bar, tables and other flat surfaces. They were structurally sound but didn't reflect their chosen style. They needed a durable, cost effective and stylish solution.

The team of 3M™ Endorsed Installers set about the transformation and in less than a day they transformed the tired surfaces, injecting Adam and Amanda's style into the most important features in the pub. The result is a resilient and stylish finish that was installed almost overnight and for a fraction of the cost or environmental impact of replacement.

By applying the patterns to surfaces across all areas of the pub, not only has it refurbished previously tired items, but helped to deliver a cohesive design theme.
